This Easy Read Policy & Procedure explains what you need to do when you bring your own Information and Communication
Technology (ICT) device to Identitywa.

What is an Information and Communication Technology (ICT) device?

It is an electronic device which can be used for entertainment, work, and fun.

It can be used to talk to your friends and family or other people.

You can look for things on the internet, listen to music and watch a movie.

An ICT device may be things like:

- computer gaming equipment
- a laptop
- an iPod
- an iPad or tablet
- a mobile phone
- a printer.

You must always use your device in a safe and secure way.

• It is up to you to protect it, so it does not get broken.

You may want to install Anti-Virus Software. Anti-virus is a program for your computer. It helps your computer to spot viruses that can damage it. It can warn you if you are about to open something that may be a virus.

This Easy Read information tells you

- the Rules about bringing your device to Identitywa
- The things you need to know to stay safe.

You or your family/representative need to sign an Electronic Device AcknowledgementForm to agree to the rules.

We will give you this form to sign.

The Rules

 You and your family need to set the privacy and security settings.

 Your support workers can help you to use your device if you need them to.

 You may use Identitywa's internet a 'little bit', for things like listening to music or watching a TV show.

 If you need to use the internet a lot, you will need to get your own internet connection.
 You can ask your family/guardian/carer or your support worker if you want help with this.

 Everybody shares the internet and workers still need to be able to do their own computer work.

Please be nice towards other people when you use your device.
